ABSTRACT

This study is focused on Death and Resurrection - A comparative study in African Traditional Religion and Christianity. The Thesis is set out to find among other things the origins of death and resurrection with a view to evaluating the concepts of death and resurrection in both African Traditional Religion and Christianity under the guise of similarities and dissimilarities to be crowned with objective submission, the theological reflections on death and resurrection with a view to find moral, psychological and emotional and philosophical impacts it has on mankind.

In carrying out these, priests of both African Traditional Religion and Christianity were met for the purpose of interview while relevant books, journals and information were utilized to achieve this goal.

The successful probings into this area will be a challenge to any one willing to advance and research to concentrate further on the question of African Traditional Religion reincarnation, biblical assertion on reincarnation and resurrection.

B. Recommendation

It is observed that a religion viewed from within is very different from what it looks like from outside. To ensure that a clearer understanding of African Traditional Religion is gained, the writer of this Thesis would love to see in the nearest future, researchers probing into Reincarnation in African Traditional Religion as compared to the Biblical Resurrection and Biblical position in Reincarnation.

This, if done will go a long way to educate and enlighten man on how best to rapport with African Traditional Religion adherents to bring about converting them to the TRUE WAY. (CHRISTIANITY).
